LOW PRICES NECESSARY TO MAKE SALES THESE DAYS

When Smith & Nixon Company decided to remove to its new quarters and determined to sell all the pianos now in stock at the present quarters, the firm was forced to face the fact that under the present condition of business it would be hard to hold a successful sale unless extremely low prices were offered. But the members of the firm determined to have the sale, regardless of the prices realized. "We must get rid of our present stock and take nothing with us into the new house," was the decision reached, and the result was a remarkable cut in prices of pianos. Louisville people who have not investigated the offer of Smith & Nixon do not realize the real merits of the bargain, but those who have investigated have found even greater reductions than they had any reason to expect.

In the lot offered are a number of upright pianos of excellent quality for $140, that ranged in price originally from $175 to $200. A Steinway Baby Grand, originally selling for $300, is offered for $140. It is practically new and is a great bargain. A $350 Old Reliable Kautmann for $247.

There is one piano in this sale that will prove a real "find" for some teacher, academy or school. It is a big Lindebach Grand, not new, but well fitted for an exercise piano for some institution. It can be bought for almost nothing, less than $100. Write about it if you can't go to see it.

These prices will prevail, of course, only until the stock is cleared out. The date of removal to the new location will be about February 15.

GOMPERS ON PANIC.

NO BLAME CAN BE LAID AT THE WORKINGMEN'S DOORS.

Head of Labor Federation Appears Before House Committee On Banking and Currency.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was an impromptu speaker to-day before the House Committee on Banking and Currency at a hearing on the question of currency legislation. Mr. Gompers prefaced his remarks by saying that he was not prepared to discuss the features of the finance problem nor to submit any solution.

"I am free to admit," he said, "that after very many years of study of the subject of money and its issuance, I have not yet solved the problem to my own satisfaction."

"I believe we must meet the new conditions confronting us as a nation, and that many old conceptions must give way to new conditions, yet I cannot escape the belief that relative provisions in the Constitution ought to have a little more weight in the determination of the nation's financial policies affecting the issuance of money. To delegate that power to private interest is something which, in my judgment, is not sustained by the proper interpretation of the constitutional provision that the Government of the United States is the duty constituted authority for the issuing of money."

Mr. Gompers attacked the "system in force by which the banks are permitted to draw interest from the Government on Government bonds, which they put up as security for bank note circulation."

Answering a question, Mr. Gompers said: "One thing is certain. No blame can be laid at the doors of the workingmen of this country for the recent financial panic. I myself advised the workingmen not to withdraw their savings from the banks, but, on the contrary, to deposit their holdings in the banks, because I felt their money would be safer in the banking institutions of the country than in their homes or in the boxes of the safe deposit companies."

Mr. Gompers was asked whether the working people of the country had suffered much as a result of the financial disturbance. "Yes," he said, "we have suffered greatly by the closing down of industrial plants and the reduction of working forces."

He was, however, unable to state the percentage of unemployed as a result of these conditions.

TILLMAN IN ANGRY PROTEST

Because Cortelyou Sent In a Printed Report.

Culberson Starts Trouble By Mild Objection.

South Carolina Man Criticizes Secretary's "Airs."

CARTER INJECTS SOME FUN.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The reply of Secretary Cortelyou to the Senate resolution calling for information concerning the operations of the Treasury Department in connection with the recent financial crisis was laid before the Senate to-day by the Vice President. The document was not read, but a printed copy of it was on the desk of each Senator, and nearly all of them at once gave it their attention.

Mr. Culberson inquired of the Vice President whether the pamphlet contained all of the Secretary's communication. The Vice President said he had not examined the report and did not know whether the pamphlet contained all of the message.

"I do not recall an instance," said Mr. Culberson, "in which a head of a department of the Government has answered a Senate resolution in printed form."

"I ask the Senator from Massachusetts," broke in Senator Tillman, turning to Senator Lodge, "who is such a stickler for senatorial dignity and senatorial rights, to reply to this inquiry."

"I don't know," responded Mr. Lodge, "whether a Cabinet officer ever sent in a printed report of this kind as a convenience, and I don't think it is a matter of importance. The entire reply will be printed to-morrow."

"Is it legal?" asked Mr. Tillman.

"It is certainly legal, because the Secretary can communicate to Congress either in typewriting or in print."

Mr. Aldrich remarked that all the reports of the Secretary of the Treasury are made to the Senate in printed form.

Mr. Tillman retorted to this suggestion by declaring: "The Secretary of the Treasury is assuming the airs of a President before he is elected to that office. The President sends his messages in this printed form, but I have never known a Cabinet officer to assume to do this before."

Mr. Aldrich said that there was a great deal of statistical matter in the reply of the Secretary. That part was now being printed, while the body of the report had been laid before the Senate. Mr. Culberson said that the fact of which he complained was that the Secretary of the Treasury had printed his argument and had it laid on the desks of the Senators and left a statement of facts which accompanied it to be printed from them.

Senator Carter, of Montana, referred to "constant importunities" that had been heard in the Senate for an immediate answer to the Senate resolution by the Secretary of the Treasury. "Had the Secretary of the Treasury delayed in making this reply," he added, "he would have been criticised, no doubt. Now his expeditious method of placing his reply before the Senate is made a subject for criticism. How in the world could the Secretary of the Treasury have pleased the Senators from South Carolina and from Texas?"

"The Secretary's Airs."

During Senator Carter's remarks Senator Beveridge interrupted, saying: "I wish to call attention to the fact that the criticism of the Senator from South Carolina was directed to the 'airs' that the Secretary has assumed."

"I want the Secretary to reply in an orderly manner," replied Mr. Tillman, "and in the same manner that has characterized his predecessors in office. He should send his report here and let us print it if we think fit. The Senator cannot point to a solitary case in which the printing has been done before."

Mr. Carter said he recalled an instance in the Senate several years ago in which a Cabinet officer had been criticised for sending a document to the Senate in typewritten form, instead of having it written with a pen.

"The Secretary," he said, "had been in New York making speeches, and now he sends this labored report to us."

Mr. Carter is facetious.

Mr. Carter inquired whether Mr. Tillman had read the report, and being told that he had not, he asked whether the report was in fact "labored" or whether it had been prepared "in a fluent manner and with special skill."

"It may be," he added, "that before the sun goes down the Senator may agree with me that the Secretary of the Treasury has said about this bond issue."

"I ask him," interrupted Mr. Tillman, "whether he undertakes to vindicate the issue of the Panama bond."

Mr. Carter retorted promptly that the Secretary had just sent the information concerning that matter to the Senate, and he did not propose to determine that matter until he had an opportunity to consider the facts.

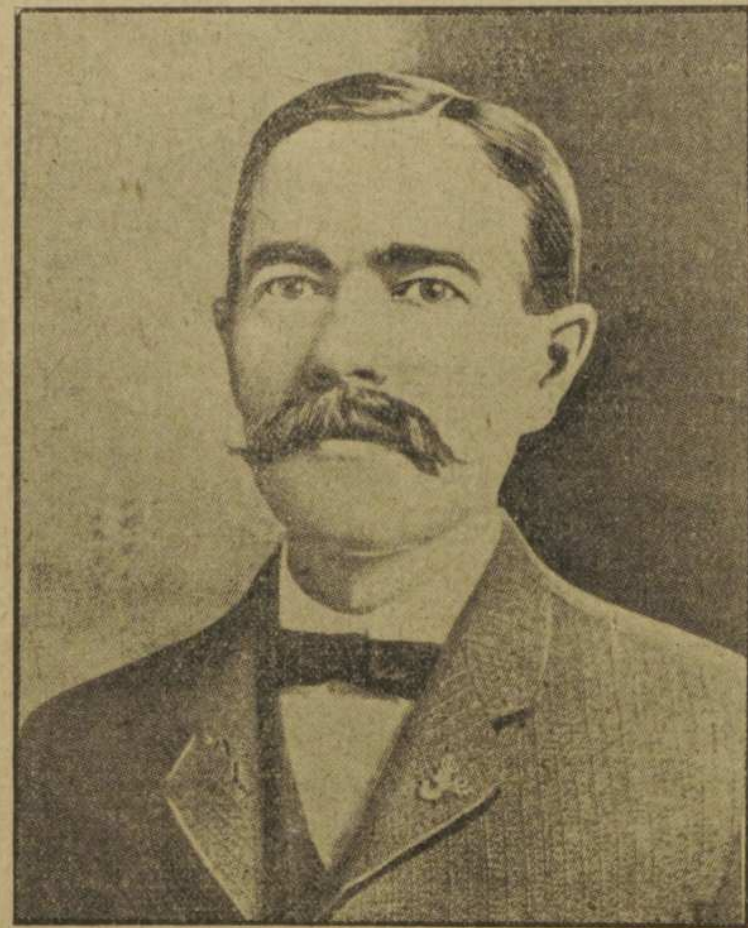

Senator Tillman declared that the Secretary of the Treasury was partisan in his defense of the Secretary.

"I have been in any case party," retorted Mr. Carter, who then added, amid general laughter, that "no presidential candidates would ask him to be their opponent."

Mr. Lodge surprised.

Mr. Tillman then declared that the printed part of the Secretary's report was merely filled with assertions.

"I know no one," said Mr. Lodge, "who has pleaded so much for light and shows so much anxiety to have it shine in dark places as he, and yet when we begin to shed light on his proposals because of the partial illumina-

NEGRO CHARGED WITH MURDER ACQUITTED.

FOUR WILLS ARE PROBATED.

Valentine Myrtle, who assumed the role of peacemaker between Mrs. Mollie Kothelmer and Mrs. Lizzie Meville when they were said to have been engaged in a fight, was relieved from liability for damages by a peremptory verdict of the jury yesterday. Mrs. Kothelmer had sued Myrtle for $5,000 charging him with assault and battery. She said that he attacked her and dealt her several blows which caused great pain. Judge Ford, however, after hearing the plaintiff's testimony, came to the conclusion that it proved that Myrtle was acting in good faith as a peacemaker. Myrtle said that the only person he made at all was to separate the two women and that this took quite an effort.

BIG CONVENTION.

National Cannery's Association May Meet Here.

COMMERCIAL CLUB DIRECTORS BEHIND MOVEMENT.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON OHIO RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

MONEY FOR FAIR BUILDINGS.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Commercial Club, held yesterday afternoon, at which all but two of the members were present, it was decided that an effort would be made to bring to Louisville in February, 1908, the convention of the National Cannery's Association. This association meets in Cincinnati next week and over 1,500 delegates will be in attendance. It is the intention of the Commercial Club to make an exhibition in connection with the convention, which will require the hiring of a hall and the installation of machinery for the manufacture of cans.

Fulton Gordon appeared before the Board of Directors yesterday afternoon and stated that at least $200,000 might be expected to attend this convention when in Louisville. To give an idea of the extent of the entertainment offered, he stated that next week in Cincinnati the American Can Company, at an expense of over $5,000, will bring the Julius Marlowe company from New York for a single performance. Mr. Gordon explained that the delegates came from points as far apart as Alaska and Central America, and that it was the annual outing of most of the delegates, many of them bringing their families.

The Commercial Club is now making plans for the convention, and it is expected that the delegates will be in Louisville next week. The Commercial Club is now making plans for the convention, and it is expected that the delegates will be in Louisville next week.
